

Phrase, Clause and Sentence

Presented

By

Muhammad Fahad Malik
15091624-067

Phrase

- Group of related words (within a sentence) that lack subject and predicate(verb).
- Phrase can not express the complete idea or thought.

Phrase does not include the subject and the verb at the same time and doesn't make a complete sense, thus; phrase can not be a sentence.

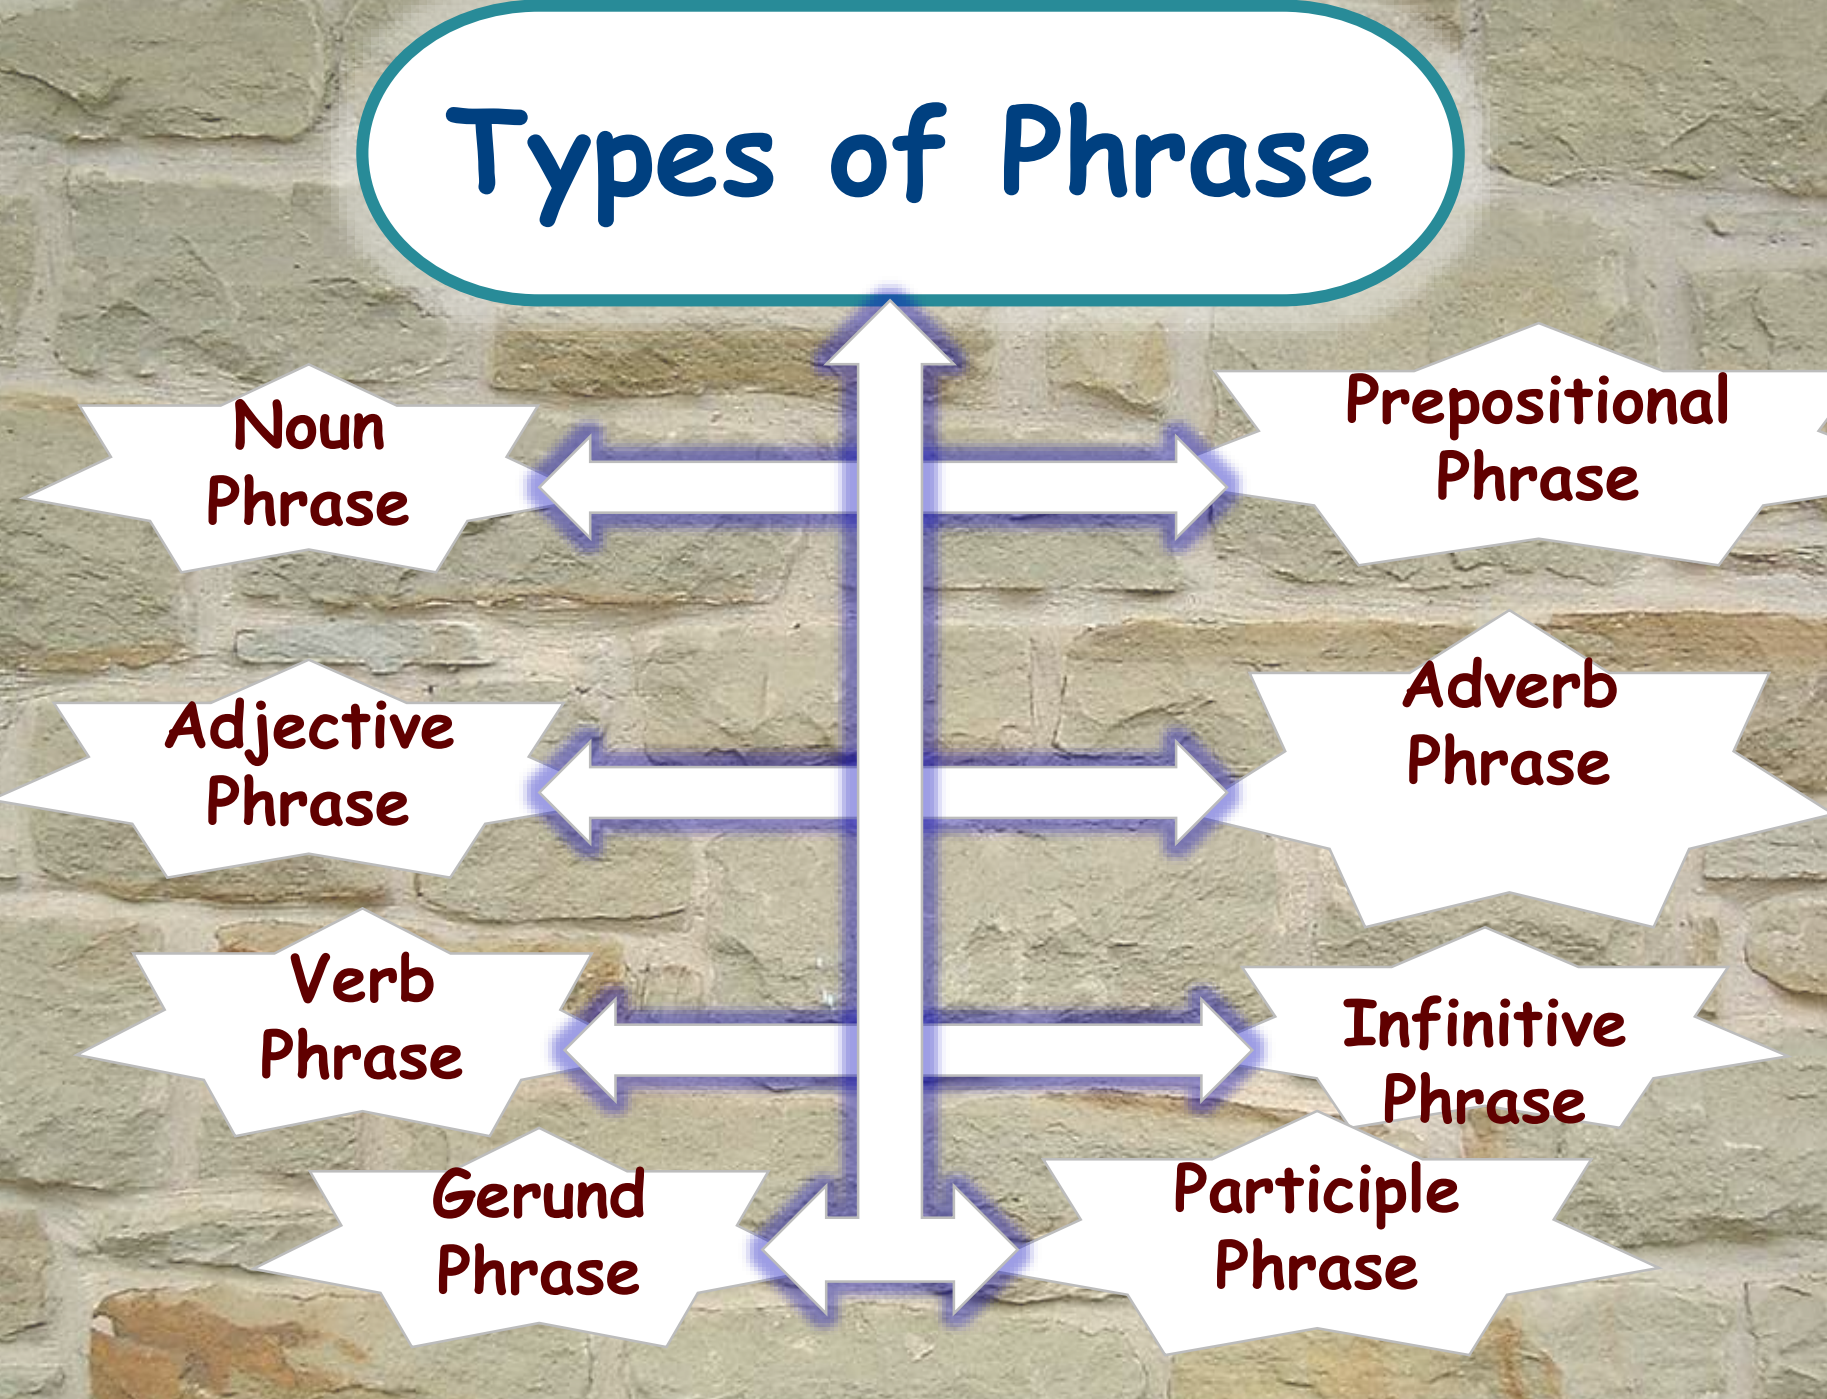

Examples of Phrase

- He is standing near a wall.
- The girl with blue eyes is my cousin.
- To become a good lawyer is my aim.

More than one phrase in a sentence

- I will meet you at 3pm, in front of the gate in the park.

Types of Phrase

Noun
Phrase

Prepositional
Phrase

Adjective
Phrase

Adverb
Phrase

Verb
Phrase

Infinitive
Phrase

Gerund
Phrase

Participle
Phrase

Noun Phrase

Consists of noun & related words (modifiers). It functions like a noun in the sentence

- The girl on the stage is singing.
- The girl with blue eyes bought a beautiful dress.

Verb Phrase

Combination of Main Verb and its auxiliaries (helping Verb) in the sentence.

- She is reading a book.
- She has been reading a book for two hours.

Prepositional Phrase

Consists of Prep, object of prep (Noun or Pro) and may also have modifiers.

- A girl at the corner of the class is Aamina.
- She is singing in a loud voice.

Adjective Phrase

Group of words function as adj. Consists of adj, modifiers and any word that modifies noun or pro in the sentence.

- She is wearing a beautiful dress.
- The boy in the red shirt is my brother.

Adverb Phrase

Group of words function as adverb. Consist of adverb and other words (preposition verb , noun, Modifiers).

- She always talks in a good way.
- She was shouting in a loud voice.

Infinitive Phrase

Consists of infinitive (to+ first form of verb) and modifiers (words associated to infinitive).

- She likes to eat chocolate.
- They made a plan to through a party.

Gerund Phrase

Consists of Gerund (verb+ing) and modifiers or words associated with gerund. It acts as noun in sentence.

- I like reading romantic novels.
- She started learning the lesson.

Participle Phrase

Consists of present participle (verb+ing) and Past participle (verb+ed) and modifiers associated to it. It is separated by Comma and acts as adj.

- The boy, begging the money, is poor.
- The book, written by Ali, is very interesting.

Clause

Group of related words (within a sentence or itself an independent sentence) containing subject and the predicate (verb) both. Thus it can express complete thought or idea.

Examples of Clause

- I will join you at 2pm.
- The students were shouting in the classroom.

- He invited everyone, but no one was present there.
- I went to university and he went to book shop because he needed a book.

Types of Clause

```
graph TD; A[Types of Clause] --> B[Main Clause]; A --> C[Subordinate Clause]; B --> D[Noun Clause]; B --> E[Adjective Clause]; B --> F[Adverb Clause]; C --> D; C --> E; C --> F;
```

Main Clause

Subordinate Clause

Noun Clause

Adjective Clause

Adverb Clause

Main Clause

Group of words having subject and predicate, that expresses complete thought or an idea and can stand as a sentence. It is also called superordinate clause, independent clause or base clause.

- I met the boy.
- The teacher asked a question.
- He became angry.
- He is wearing a hat.

Subordinate Clause

Group of words having subject and predicate, that can not express complete thought or an idea and can never stand as a sentence. They always depend upon main Clause, thus; they are also called dependent clause.

- Whenever it rains, he goes for a long drive.
- I first met her in Karachi where I lived as a child.

Types of Subordinate Clause

Noun Clause

Dependent clause functions as a noun. It performs same functions like a noun in a sentence.

- On weekends, we can do whatever we want. (functions as object of sentence)
- Those who are poor need our help. (subject)

Adjective Clause

Dependent clause functions as adj. It modifies a noun or the pronoun in the sentence.

- The lady who lives across the street is my aunt.
- The book that is on the chair belongs to me.

Adverb Clause

Dependent clause functions as an adverb that modifies a verb, adj clause or another adverb clause in the sentence.

- Put the hammer down because you might hurt someone.
- You can achieve anything provided that you struggle for it.

Sentence

Word or Group of words that can express a complete idea and that includes a subject and a predicate. It is the largest independable unit of grammar which begin with capital letter and ends with full stop (.), question mark (?) or exclamation mark (!).

e.g. He laughed. She ate an apple. She goes to school. etc.

Types of Sentence

With respect to Structure

1. Simple Sentence
2. Compound Sentence
3. Complex Sentence
4. Complex-Compound Sentence

With respect to Function

1. Affirmative Sentence
2. Negative Sentence
3. Interrogative sentence
4. Exclamatory sentence
5. Imperative Sentences

With Respect to Structure

Simple Sentence

Consists of only one independent clause. Having a subject and verb which can express complete thought. No in-dependable clause

- He laughed.
- He is sleeping.
- I brought a book
- She drank juice.

Compound Sentence

Consists of at least two independent clauses joined by co-ordinating conjunctions (for, and, but, yet). No dependable clause.

- I like tea but my brother likes coffee.
- The teacher asked the question and the student answered correctly..

Complex Sentence

Consists of one independent and at least one dependent clause joined by subordinating conjunctions (although, since, when, unless etc)

- She is wearing a dress which looks nice.
- You can not pass the exam unless you study for it.

Complex-Compound Sentence

Consists of at least two independent and one or more dependable clauses.

- I went to University and he went to the book shop because he needed books.
- Although I like books, I do not like comics but my friend loves them.

With Respect to Functions

Affirmative Sentence

The sentences that shows positivity, validity and the truth. Positive sentences tell us what something is, has or does.

- This cat is black.
- He has a cat.
- The book is lying on the table.

Negative Sentence

A negative is defined as a person or thing that refuses or denies, or is undesirable, unwanted or disliked. It includes 'not'.

- This cat is not black.
- He does not have a cat.
- The book is not lying on the table.

Exclamatory Sentence

These sentence express strong emotions and feelings. It ends with an exclamatory mark (!).

- Oh my God! It's so horrible!
- Hurraah! We won the match!

Interrogative Sentence

An interrogative sentence is a sentence that asks a question. It end with a question mark (?).

- What is this?
- Where have you been?

Imperative Sentence

An imperative sentence gives advice or instructions or expresses a request or command. It ends with full stop or exclamatory mark.

- Don't text me.
- Open the door.
 - Shut up!

Thank You

